Dear Harold:

Herewith some more clippings. Let's hope they have a few crumbs which haven't otherwise reached you.

I include even the stuff from the Post-Times wire service, as what the Post files on this circuit is not always identical with what it prints.

We've just had a brief heat wave, but it cooled off today enough that I could get back to painting the house.

Otherwise no news. I keep busy, including assorted mini-projects for Hospice. It continues spreading, with some 200 units either formed or in formation all over the country. Hospice of Marin is currently conducting its third week-long seminar this year for doctors and nurses from coast to coast. This crop is more keenly interested, and is asking sharper questions, than the two preceding ones. Very good to see how the word is spreading, and I have the impre ssion that the whole idea is having its effect on the attitude of much of the medical profession.

Best to you both,

jdw
